

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a web server comprising software modules that are integrated in said server. At least one first software module of the web server has first means for a non-proprietary implementation of automation functionality and second means for accessing a real-time operating system.